

Smiles on the worst day of the year

Law firm Wilson Browne LLP decided to face the worst day of year in an alternative fashion. Instead of joining in with all the doom and gloom left hanging around after the Christmas and New Year celebrations, where credit card bills have started to arrive on doormats, people realise how many pounds they have gained from over indulging, not to mention the dark and gloomy days, they celebrated in style at The Terrace bar in the city centre.

The firm, whose Leicester office is on Peacock Lane, invited a number of clients, referrers and contacts to join in with some fun to beat the depression that the worst day of the year can bring and face Black Monday head on.

Guests from across the business community in Leicestershire and the surrounding counties enjoyed the talent of mind reader Mark Cairns as well as having the opportunity to network with each other throughout the evening whilst sampling a variety of drinks and nibbles at The Terrace on Albion Street.

“We are absolutely delighted with the turnout for this event” confirmed Family Law Partner Danka Neuborn. “We have been able to meet clients old and new in what was a very relaxing and fun atmosphere. We have already received a high level of positive feedback and so hope to make this an annual event for the Leicester team”.

The firm’s Leicester team were supported by colleagues from the firm’s Commercial office in Kettering as well as colleagues from the Family, Litigation, Private Client and Conveyancing Departments from across four other Northamptonshire offices.
